COSTLY GAME OF CRAP. William Webb Fined $20-Other Offenders in Police Court.

William Webb was in the lead in Judge Kimball's court this morning when the procession started, and he entered a denial when the clerk arraigned him on a charge of having engaged in a game of crap. "He was in the game with a number of other men." was the statement of Police-

"Did you get the bones?" the court asked. "No, your honor," the policeman answered. "One of the boys grabbed the bones and ran off with them."
"I wasn't in the game," the colored man declared. "I was told a colored girl gave the names of thirteen of us." The court fined Webb $20, sending him down for two months. "Guilty," was the plea of John Drake, who was accused of disorderly conduct.

"Is it an ordinary case?" the prosecuting officer was asked.
"No, sir," was his answer.
The court thought otherwise when the policeman had made his statement and im-posed the ordinary penalty-$5 or fifteen

In the next case Charles Brooks, colored, was defendant. He was charged with profanity, and Policeman O'Brien said the offense was out of the ordinary.
"How long did he continue his swearing?"

He stopped when I laid hands on him." "Five dollars." Frederick Carter, a pensioner, appeared in the tolls because of his intemperance.

"He's been drunk about twelve times in a menth ,to my knowledge," Policeman Lynch stated, "and I've had to care for him several times." "I'm on a furlough from the Hampton Home," Carter said, "and I admit Washington whisky did make a fool of me."

"When does your furlough expire?"
"Today," answered Carter," and I'm go-さんかんかんろうちゃんかんかんかん ing to return this afternoon."
"That depends upon what the court does." Carter paid a fine of $5 and departed. Edward Lansdale was put out of a saloon, according to the complaint entered by a po-liceman, and a charge of disorderly conduct was preferred against him. Five dollars was the amount of penalty imposed. "Charles West gets arrested occasionally," said Attorney Peyton, "but I hope your honor will make the fine small."

"I can't do that," the judge said. "Whisky is at the bottom of his trouble, and he's

Program at Meeting of the Columbia

The next meeting of the Columbia Historical Society will be held in the banquet hall of the Shoreham Monday evening, beginning at 8 o'clock. A paper will be read by Mr. S. H. Kauffmann on equestrian statuary in this city, a subject of much current interest in view of the additions that are being made and proposed to be made to these memorials of illustrious men. Following this paper appropriate reference will be made to the loss sustained by the society in the death of Dr. Samuel C. Busey, a member of the board of managers, and an opportunity will be afforded for expressions on the part of those present.

After an extended investigation, in which much testimony was taken, they reached the unanimous opinion that they could do nothing else but continue the suspension against the boy.

$50,000 Stake for St. Louis. The Delmar Club, the new racing association of St. Louis, will declare war against the Western Jockey Club because the latter "outlawed" the former club. They will give a $50,000 race as an attraction.

I trust that the Society of the Army of the Potomac, which is to meet in Washington this year, will protest against the statue of Gen. Grant being placed upon ground that any President's horses have been stabled upon.

The base for the Sherman statue might be left where it is and a statue of Alexander Hamilton placed upon it. During the St. Louis world's fair year the richest stake ever offered in the west will be given. It is to be of a guaranteed value of $50,000. It will be a futurity handicap, with the weights arbitrarily instead of conditionally assigned. It will be at a mile and a quarter and entries will close some time next fall. The various fees will be so arranged that failure to remit will constitute a declaration, hence the full will constitute a declaration, hence the full value of the stake will be in cash, there being no forfeit. The weights will be announced thirty days before the race is decided. Samuel Anderson was today convicted in the Police Court of assaulting Thomas S.
